INTRODUCTION

0-----0

I'm almost finished FAQing every game for the Channel F. Next game I will FAQ is Video Whizzball which will be followed shortly by Slot Machine. In Video Whizzball, you go against another player or the computer and try to fire your missiles at the boulders and try to knock them into your opponent's goal to score points.

-When the game starts you will see the default setting of 14. That means that all boulders are worth one point, normal missiles, and up to four boulders on the screen.

-Twist Left to raise the mode number from 1 to 6 and Twist Right to change the max onscreen boulder number between 1 to 4.

-The six modes (number on left during game option) are as follows:

- 1: Normal Missiles, 1 point each
- 2: Guided Missiles, 1 point each
- 3: Normal Missiles, number on boulder determines points scored.
- 4: Guided Missiles, number on boulder determines points scored.
- 5: Normal Missiles, point values change randomly.
- 6: Guided Missiles, point values change randomly.

-Max Boulders (number on right during game option) are as follows:

- 1: One Boulder
- 2: Two Boulders
- 3: Three Boulders
- 4: Four Boulders

-PLUNGE DOWN from here to go to the score option and determine what the score will be to win.

-PULL UP to start the game.

-The boulders move every which way depending on where you shoot it.

-If a player is hit by a stray missile or boulder, that player is disabled for a few seconds or until someone scores so the disabled player can still score if the other player was careless to let the boulder pass by.

-There are three ways to play: 2-player, 1-player, watch. If the controller is left untouched before the first boulder, it becomes CPU controlled. Same will happen after 2.5 minutes of inactivity.

-After the winning score is reached, the game will keep going and can be used for practice.
